Dear Members of ICPI,

I would like to thank you for the financial support, allowing me to attend the 2013 annual CAP meeting in Orlando, FL. The meeting was a valuable part of my education on multiple levels.

This CAP meeting was very intense and full of opportunities for me. I had 3 posters in different aspects of gastrointestinal and gynecologic pathology. Discussion regarding the topics of my research with experts from other institutions definitely provided a lot of new ideas which I can reflect in manuscripts related to projects presented in Orlando. Aside from the outstanding lectures, during this meeting I attended the fellowship fair and got an opportunity to find out the different positions available all over the country.

Being a second year resident, I benefitted professionally by attending the educational courses encompassing a broad range of topics from morphology to latest tool molecular diagnostics in various diseases which will definitely benefit me to prepare for my boards.

Finally, it was exciting to meet and connect with many residents and fellows, with different experiences and backgrounds during the social activities and College of American Pathology (CAP) Residents Forum. Some of the most important issues facing residents were discussed there.

Thank you once again for your financial support to pathology trainees.

Sincerely,

Sabina Babayeva, M.D.
