RE: Intersociety Council for Pathology Information Travel Award

Dear members of ICPI board,

I am a PGY-4 pathology resident from University at Buffalo. It is my honor to receive the 2013 ICPI Travel Award. This award provided an important financial support in allowing me to attend the ASCP annual conference from Sept 18-21 in Chicago, IL.

I am thrilled to have the opportunities to attend several high impact and engaging discussions in development and progress in pathology and health care, including the keynote address by the honorable Hillary Clinton.

I really enjoyed the diverse and practical education sessions by many renowned experts in the field. I have attended the lectures in GU, GYN, head and neck, cytology, soft tissue, and hematopathology, etc. The well organized resident mini review lectures also provided valuable information on board preparation. There were so many interesting topics that I wish I could attend them all.

I also engaged in discussions during the poster sessions, attended the resident council meeting and reception, from which I had the chances to network with the faculty members and fellow trainees. I am impressed by the opportunities that ASCP offers for the residents, including serving in various committees and channeling the concerns and suggestions through the resident council.

Once again, I would like to express my appreciation for the ICPI Travel Award, which made my participation in the ASCP annual conference possible.

Sincerely,

He Huang MD PhD
