

Amy Coffey
ICPI Statement
September 2014

I recently attended the Society of Pediatric Pathology fall meeting in Birmingham, England with the help of the ICPI Travel Award. The meeting was an incredible experience. A large number of abstracts were presented covering a variety of topics in pediatric pathology. Not only was it a rich educational experience, but I was also able to present my own abstract and discuss it with other pathologists in the field.

As an aspiring pediatric pathologist, perhaps one of the greatest benefits of the meeting was the opportunity to meet other practicing pathologists and learn from their experience in the field. This particular meeting was held jointly with the European Paediatric Pathology Society, so I was also exposed to the European perspective. I really enjoyed meeting a variety of different people at the conference.

In summary, the ICPI Travel Award enabled me to participate in a fantastic meeting held joint between the Society of Pediatric Pathology and the European Paediatric Pathology Society. This experience was invaluable to the development of my future career as a pediatric pathologist, and I am grateful for programs like the ICPI that facilitate such experiences.