Dear Sir/Madam

I would like to thank the Intersociety Council for Pathology Information (ICPI) for the 2014 Travel Award for the Association for Molecular Pathology Annual Meeting in National Harbor, MD. It was a valuable experience with numerous learning and networking opportunities. It was also a privilege to present my posters to actively engaged attendees who asked thoughtful questions. This was a great opportunity to learn how scientists and clinicians from other institutions handle clinical problems and approach test development and test utilization. In addition, it provided me with useful considerations for the manuscripts associated with these studies. Also, I enjoyed viewing the other poster presentations and the interesting series of platform presentations on solid tumor topics.

One of other benefits of the Meeting was the chance to meet luminaries in the field who are using novel technology to address important questions in clinical care and research. I very much enjoyed meeting peers from other institutions who share my enthusiasm for Molecular Pathology. I am very grateful to the Intersociety Council for Pathology Information for this Travel Award and I look forward to consistently attending and participating at the Association for Molecular Pathology Annual Meeting in the future.

Sincerely,

Rondell P Graham
