To Whom It May Concern:

Thank you for the generous travel award which allowed me to attend the ASCP annual meeting in Tampa, FL this past month. I am a medical student in El Paso, Texas and it was fairly expensive to purchase the flights for such a long distance. I am very thankful for your assistance and your help made my travels possible.

It was an honor to present my poster regarding multifocal breast cancer in Hispanic women and I learned a lot from the other posters and presentations throughout the conference. As I met and spoke with residents and pathologists, this conference confirmed my career choice and I am currently interviewing for a pathology residency position. In addition, this conference opened my mind to the possibilities that are available to me as a future pathologist, and I know those possibilities are exciting. Again, thank you very much for the travel award.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey Mohlman, MSIV
