

Cherie Paquette
ICPI Statement
March 2014

The ICPI Trainee Travel Award was a great help in defraying the cost of my attendance at this year's USCAP meeting in San Diego California. The award was particularly useful as I was flying in from the East Coast and so had high airfare costs.

I was pleased that my poster generated a good amount of discussion as a gynecologic pathology 'hot topic'. My research project drew a good deal of inspiration from a paper published this past fall and the lead author of that article came by to discuss my poster with me. This type of interaction is certainly facilitated by attending a large pathology conference.

Additionally I attended several subspecialty evening conferences as well as platforms sessions in my fields of interest. It was a great learning experience. Thank you for your help in supporting my conference travel as a trainee.