Dear ICPI Board,

I am appreciative of the support I received from ICPI for attendance at this year's Association of Pathology Chairs (APC/PRODS) annual meeting in San Diego, California. I represented the United States and Canadian Academy of Pathology (USCAP) as one of only four trainees participating from various organizations. During this meeting I was able to communicate the current and upcoming campaigns USCAP has planned over the course of the next few years that will directly impact trainee engagement and education within the organization. Through this venue I was able to give this information to many new residency program directors that will be able to distribute this information to their trainees. Additionally, I was able to answer questions and receive input from many in the audience on how USCAP can better impact resident trainees.

Additionally, I had the great fortune of participating in a panel discussion on ethics and professionalism as it pertains to training in a pathology residency program. There were several cases that were discussed and panel members included program chairs, residency directors, as well as a handful of trainees from various institutions and PGY levels. This session was recorded and will serve as a valuable tool and resource for many when trying to address challenging professionalism issues that are currently being encountered in the ever-changing technological, cultural, and social environments in which we work.

Sincerely,
